ISIS terrorist organization has claimed the responsibility.

2 Cross-border Operations

a. Turkish Armed Forces' Afrin Operation

The operation "Olive Branch" that Turkish Armed Forces has started to launch in order to provide security and stability along the borders and in the region by neutralizing the terrorists belonging to PKK/PYD-YPG and ISIS terrorist organizations in Afrin region in the north-western part of Syria is going on within the scope of humanitarian aid and mine cleaning.

The General Staff has announced that;

"The operation is based on the rights of our country arising from international law, the decisions of the United Nations Security Council against terrorism, in particular, numbered 1624 (2005), 2170 (2014) and 2178 (2014), and in the framework of the Legislative Defense Act of the 51st article of the UN Convention. It is also conducted respectfully to the territorial integrity of Syria.

The necessary support is provided by Turkish Armed Forces for the arrival of humanitarian aid supplied by the Red Crescent, AFAD and UN to the region and support continues to restore normal standards of life in Afrin."

In addition, 4254 terrorists have been rendered ineffective from the beginning of operation.

Security Assessment

The operation "Olive Branch" that Turkish Armed Forces has started to launch in order to provide security and stability along the borders and in the region by neutralizing the terrorists belonging to PKK/PYD-YPG and ISIS terrorist organizations in Afrin region in the north-western part of Syria is going on within the scope of humanitarian aid and mine cleaning.

The security sensitivities in the neighborhoods of Hatay and Kilis, especially in Reyhanlı, that occurred due to the rocket attacks by the members of the terrorist organization, has lessened compared to the previous period.

Within the scope of operations carried out against ISIS terrorist organization in Turkey, the detention of the members of the organization continues intensively. Especially, it is observed that the detentions are mostly in İstanbul and Kocaeli. It has been assessed that; though the ISIS terrorist organization has lost the control of most of the areas dominated in Iraq and Syria, it continues to carry out attacks especially in those countries. Besides, the ISIS affiliates and members may also carry out attacks that attract the attention of international public opinion.

On the other hand, it has been assessed that;

The operations of the security forces in the Eastern and Southeastern Anatolia regions towards the PKK terrorist organization continue. As the senior leaders of the organization in the Ministry of Interior's list of wanted terrorists detained recently, the PKK terrorist organization may continue its attacks primarily towards the police and military units in order to interrupt the ongoing operations.

In addition, due to the fact that there are certain special days in May such as May 1 commemorations and the anniversary of the Gezi Park events on May 27, when it is taken into consideration that certain marches and commemoration events will be organized on these days, it is assessed that these days will be critical.

And, it is estimated that the security sensitivities will be high in May and June, since the early elections will be held on 24 June.

The developments related to these sensitivities will be followed by us and the necessary information will be shared via SMS and e-mail when needed.

Highlight of the Month

Integrating Security Officers and Security Entrances

Maintaining a secure entrance is an essential part of overall building security, and many enterprises are employing security officers to guard their entrances and exits and to manage traffic flow. Hiring a security professional who is trained to secure an enterprise while being welcoming and helpful to tenants and guests can deter many crimes and provide peace of mind. In addition, security officers are your critical first responders, should something go wrong.

Yet, security officers can easily be distracted while executing daily responsibilities as commonplace as engaging visitors and employees. Alarm fatigue can also be a factor; if a security officer repeatedly receives false alarms, they can tune them out or turn them off. Thanks to the proliferation of smartphones, says research by Statistic Brain, the average attention span of an adult person is 8.25 seconds. That number is down from 12 seconds, which was the average attention span in the year 2000. While that may not necessarily apply to every member of your security team, it could potentially leave your enterprise open to unknown risks and an inability to mitigate those risks.

A complete physical security plan for your enterprise's entrances and exits should consist of a balance between technology, education and manpower.

There are multiple types of security entrance solutions for different applications, industries and levels of security. They all integrate easily with access control systems and most also work very well with biometric verification technologies to ensure the identity of the user. When researching which security entrance to employ, it's important to first identify your goal. Waist-high turnstiles, Full-height turnstiles, Optical turnstiles, Security revolving doors and mantrap portals are some security entrance solutions.

Professional security officers are an essential component of a physical security plan, but should be considered one component in an integrated solution. Security entrances help ensure the best use of security officers' physical presence to not only monitor activities, but also register visitors, train employees on proper security procedures and handle other critical tasks. Security entrances deter casual intrusion, accurately record entry transactions, never take a day off, can't be distracted, won't suffer from alarm fatigue, and will always be alert and aware.

When deployed in combination with well-trained and professional security officers, security entrances create an added layer of physical security that is highly reliable with multiple checkpoints, to ensure a secure work environment

Securitas Guidelines for Secure Life

Measures to Take while Driving

Any person may be the target of security-threatening events while in a vehicle. This part provides points of consideration for persons sitting in or driving vehicles.

What to Do:

1. Keep all doors locked while parked or driving.
2. Be careful about stop signs and red lights.
3. Be ready to move away from the spot or honk your horn in case of danger.
4. Make sure that you keep the necessary equipment in the vehicle and have a full tank at all times. (Inflated spare tyre, one litre of drinking water, a folding shovel, first-aid kit, repair kit, lifting jack, signal lamp and transmission cable, etc.)
5. Before leaving your vehicle, check if there are any suspicious persons around the car.
6. If you have the possibility to park your vehicle in a parking lot or a garage, do not use streets for parking.
7. Check the surroundings and inside of your vehicle before getting in.
8. Make sure that all doors are locked before leaving your vehicle.

Securitas Guidelines for Secure Life

What Not to Do:

1. Driving on or parking your vehicle in a desolate place if you suspect that you are being followed. (In this situation, return to crowded streets. If the vehicle is still following you, go to the closest police station or any other spot where you can get help.)
2. Panicking when someone tries to force you out of the road. (The best thing to do in this situation is to honk the horn for a while to attract attention. If you are still being forced out of the road although you have stopped the car, put the car into the reverse gear and tries to move away from there.)
3. Taking a stranger into your vehicle.

We Celebrate;

May 01, Labour Day,

May 19, The Commemoration of Atatürk, Youth and Sports Day,

And wish you safe and healthy days.

Best Regards.
